To make sure I understand. A letter like this?

Could be please let me know exactly what information you would want in the event that I request disbursement from the marital trust.

Seems to me I ought to withhold the letter to Harry until we receive a response from Max, which might influence how to approach Harry.

I've been thinking about it since you wrote. Sitting with Harry will be a waste of time, and unless you think it's wise, we're hesitant about providing Max with more information, because it's none of his business. I've been thinking about writing a strong letter to Harry, telling him that of course his proposal is outrageous and designed to be unacceptable and that it leaves us with two options: (1) accepting one of the proposals I sent, preferably deciding to split the Trust and liquidating it, or (2) letting a Court make further decisions. I'd like to leave it up to him to make Court proceedings inevitable.

What do you think?

1. asking the court to remove harry. ? sitting with harry , and having it out. . . or first providing max with more financial info , in order to give him more rope. . . . Im afraid to protect valeria. something must be done. the facts are clear. harry wants the money, . and his sisters dont want to get invovled in a fight. . your call
