The surgeons office sent me a breakdown that said the procedures I am having and then added in a possible other one. It has

1st TMT fusion
Modified Mc Bride
(Possibly) 2nd Metatarsal Osteotomy.

I phoned them and they asked them and they said that he has the 2nd metatarsal osteotomy down as a possibility and will consult with me beforehand. This is because my second metatarsal is a bit too long and I have pain underneath it. When I had my second consultation with him he did mention that he thinks I will get relief under the second toe from the 1st TMT fusion and the mc bride as I will once again be able to put pressure on the ball of my big toe. And...I can always have the second metatarsal osteotomy at a later stage if I havent got enough relief. On the other hand...I am already undergoing the surgery and will have to stay off the foot so maybe it is better to get it done at once...

Difficult to say I suppose but needed you to know before I go in case you have a strong feeling towards one way or the other

I am going to phone him again tomorrow to find out if he is only going to decide this once he has opened up my foot?
