I had a look at them, Smiley has two of them are functioning now. One just has a busted a filter lid, I will check with the manufacturer on a replacement but we could even fabricate one if we had too. The other one, the bearings seem to be failing. After we have three online, we should probably send the fourth one out and have the windings checked and the bearings replaced. I will check with Bob and see who he knows locally that can rebuild electric motors. It also needs the seal kit for the pump end that Brice mentioned.
