A great conference and we are all on track for Alan.

Fabio suggests a pilot experiment of screening the subjects totally. Then doing long runs of give light no light in random order to try and cut down the main trial or help to frame it, no hyper scanning at this stage. I tried it today as A was in London and a wooden door blocked some but not all the energy but all the light!

I would like you to meet Fabio, he has done hyperscanning in the Sistine Chapel – wow.

Could we please have £11K to do this experiment, 10K for the small study and 1k for administration for the university.

Peter
