I am watching the positions closely but I don't have stops in. The worst case scenario wkd be that we wld be buying usd jpy in jan at 94, selling Aud at 95, NZD at 83 at Gbp at 1 595 and buying usd cad at 1 01

In Fx there are traders who make lucrative careers out of running stops (ESP in Australia) If i leave a stop in it is pretty sure that it will b done even if the position is or would be a profitable one.

I spoke w Harry and hr said that yest p/l showed a $35 k improvement probably due to improvement in jpy positions.

Hope u r well

Hi Jeffrey

On Monday Japanese GDP came out a full percent lower than expected (2.6 vs 3.6 expected) and the JPY has sold off since then. Focus in the financial markets remains in the end of the Fed's QE which is expected to begin in September despite no inflation in wholesale and retail prices. The stock market sell off has put the USD under more pressure than earlier in the year, but the medium and long term USD uptrend remain intact.

I hope that this note finds you well. I received a note from Paul that I should get in touch with you. I will be in a more reliable wifi area this weekend and will send a position update on Monday.

Kind regards

Laurie
