Hey Bossman,

The computer that control the R/O plant is not working and the screen is not visible to find the problem. LSJ is unable to turn salt water into fresh water until we get a new computer screen for the R/O system.

We have a month worth of water if we do not use the irrigation system.

Please advise,
Ann R.

Ann,

Please see the attached quotation for replacing the Siemens touchscreen for the Little St. James SWRO system. I've not been out there to look at this personally, but I did get online with the machine today and have a look at the PLC and I could not make a connection with the touchscreen. I also talked with Danny about what had transpired, but I am not certain that this will be the only issue and unfortunately, we will not know until the touchscreen is replaced and the plant re-started. I will remind you that three high pressure tubes blew up causing the touchscreen to be flooded with saltwater, so [REDACTED] sure that there is at least one other problem with the machine that will have to be dealt with.

Call me if you have any questions.
