Update

i leave this coming Friday for seven weeks on the road, i will see Gordon Getty on the 6th of November, lecture to 140 pharmacists in Seattle on the 11th and spend the following week at Chapman University in Orange County within LA, then U of Texas and a week in Spain

Chapman is very important because if i can stand LA for 2-3 months at a time i can easily double my teaching, promise to make frequent visits in the fall and earn a full-time salary—and a good one at that, judging from their enthusiasm so far in having me associated with them

Michael Shermer of Skeptic Society and Magazine, a VERY bright multi-talented guy is also a Presidential Fellow there and i will lecture to his class on 'The Evolutionary Genetics of Honour Killings', which he will film at high quality, edit and have U-tubed within a month to > 100,000 immediate viewers

that's how i like to publish these days—i have worked the whole thing out Jeffrey, trust me, even the inheritance angle you emphasised, differing in interesting ways between Hindu and Muslim—f... the academic paper, go international (my talk in Barcelona November 28, same topic, also u-tubed) and then do a short, sweet but hopefully powerful book

BTW i actually am publishing something academic (your Enhanced Learning thanked, see attached) that relates to transsexuality among other sex differences—not quite the Huffington Post piece you urged on me, but still some very modest progress !

i am feeling pretty strong and calm and am spending a lot of time working on talks 3 to 6 weeks in the future, but i have always found that the earlier you start, the better the product

here is wishing you everything good, nothing but fond memories and high expectations
