sorry, i fully understand , this is less about the house but more about the technicalites of the trust. if they say yes , we dont have to take it, if they say no it is helpful for noam. trust me

Dear Jeffrey,

I don't want any of the money from the Trusts involved in our new house, not even to pay for the gardener. To purchase our new house with this money goes against all my principles. I don't want it and don't accept it. Actually don't accept this money for anything that involves me. I think if Noam thinks he is entitled to this money and wants to make use of it, he has to dedicate the money to things that only refers to him, such as paying for his subscriptions and business expenses that this year reached $ 130 thousand, but not for our common life or for any assets that we purchase together, as a couple. Especially now that I will be back to the work market.

Jeffrey, there is something very serious going on with his children. I am being taken as someone who came to Noam's life to steal his money, as you probably have noticed. I lived to the age of 50 years old without Noam; having comfort first, through my family and later through my work. I had positions where I was respected, trusted and admired. For the first time in my life, I am being accused of very serious issues and in an inner circle that I should call "family". I don't have to accept this. I don't want to have anything to do with Noam's children. I married him, not them. They seem to believe that things have to be decided by a Committee. This is not a collective marriage. I am not interested in what Noam has given or decides to give to them, but also as spouses we have the right to live and decide our lives without their interference. That's why I want to have our finances completely separated from them. The same way we don't get involved in their lives, they don't have to get involved in ours. This is the goal.

I think this suggestion of asking the money for the purchase of our new house, will put us again in the situation of dependency and will tie the house as an asset that was purchased with the money from their mother's trust (as they consider as being their mother's money) and with funds that the children are entitled to receive as the beneficiaries. Therefore the use of any money from the trust would raise questions that the house should come to them, since it was acquired with the money from their mother's trust.

Anyone has the right, and it is not different for Noam, to leave a house for his second spouse, but not with the money from the Trusts in the name of Carol and that has their children as the beneficiaries. It would be morally wrong. But besides anyone's right to leave whatever to a second spouse, even more when Noam's spouse will be working in a formal job, besides working with him and contributing to the finances.

I take solely responsibility to what is written above as my view of the facts. This doesn't mean that Noam has the same views, of course.

Valeria

Dear Max , I have purchased a residence for myself and valeria in arizona. . I would like a distribution from the trust to pay for it and its renovation. thank you for you consideration.

Dear Noam,

Max and I spoke this morning, regarding your question below and regarding the trust accounts which you asked me about last week. Max indicated that the trust accounts are in the process of going through a final review and they should be ready to be sent to me and you shortly. Max, please let us know about when you expect to get these out to us.

With respect to your inquiry below, Max indicates that he sent to my office all of the contracts that were in his possession. We compiled all of those contracts into binders for our files in May, and we would be happy to provide you with a complete set for your records. There are three large three-ring binders in a set, and I would be happy to arrange for them to be delivered to you. Please let me know when and where you would like these delivered. We will be creating a separate binder for all contracts we have copies of that were entered into after the original set of binders was compiled, and we will provide you with that new binder as well, to be updated as new contracts are entered into.

With regard to the Gift Agreement with MIT, I have attached a copy for your records. Your gift to MIT constitutes a gift of physical materials and a license to copy, etc. for the copyright period, but does not constitute a gift of the copyrights themselves. If you have any questions about the agreement, or any other matters relating to your copyrights, please don't hesitate to contact Gene or me.

All my best,

Deborah

Good morning Noam –

I will need to retrieve several of your files on this subject. (I believe some are in our offsite storage area.) I will reply to you first with whatever I have at hand and then supplement that with any offsite material that appears relevant.

With best wishes,

Max

Max,

We're trying to work out arrangements about Intellectual Property and the archives. Met with the librarians, and they told us you should have the information. So could you please let me know what work has been done in the past on the IP, and what your understanding is with regard to the contract with MIT and its effect on IP rights?

Thanks,

Noam
