With all due respect, Rich, I believe the question is for Eileen to resolve. For your information, Elizabeth and I were working on the art together, including promised works, before you arrived and documenting the gifts involves legal work.

Regarding the jewelry list, I think it would have been prudent to show me a final draft of the list before you sent it to Debra, since I prepared the predecessor list with Elizabeth. I also think it would be smart to have me look at all the lists and get my input given how involved I was in preparing the predecessor versions. Again, that is entirely Eileen's call.

The issue of going to museums etal to finish the documentation of pledges has been an outstanding assignment of Elizabeth and myself.

The list provided to EA was for Narrows LLC only. We need to centralize the provision of information from a single source and not have multiple purveyors. I am working on the lists for the item below – The jewelry list is already circulated and note that that is under review by Peggy/ Debra. When changes come back, I can circulate an update from thr master jewelry list. Also, there may be additioanl items of jewelry that are not accounted for, i.e review of this inventory is not complete.
