See answer from Michelle below. If she understands this is a project of reasonable duration, I may be able to tempt her. I will call and speak to her to get more color on her situation but you have a better feel- when would the project really begin? I would think this wouldn't necessarily ramp to full speed right away but at its peak is this a full time job?....

Hello Eileen.

What a lovely surprise. I hope you are all enjoying your new space. I have reason to be in your old building from time to time and I think of you all. I am very flattered that you thought of me for your new project. I would love to discuss it but must tell you that since we last met I have taken on a full time support position. It is not 24/7 but is full time. If you would like to still discuss my participation as a freelancer and the exact scope I would be interested in speaking at your leisure. Again, thank you for thinking of me.

All the best.

Michelle

Hello, Michelle. I hope you are well. When we spoke last summer I was very impressed with you but the fit wasn't perfect for the position we spoke about. We've built the family office staff out a bit in the interim. As you will see in my footnote, we have also moved and have changed the name of the office to Elysium Management. We have a large construction project ahead for our principal's townhouse and your skillset may be perfect. Please give a call at your convenience if you are open to discussing.

Thank you, Eileen

Many thanks.
