JE, I have had a relationship with Michael Bailkin for almost 25 years, and he is far and away at the top of the totem pole in the world of real estate, and beyond exceptionally smart. My wealthy Mexican families are interested in working with him, per the attached information on the Arete Fund, but someone like yourself could probably step in and do the entire deal yourself, and realize all the benefits (potentially, and relatively near term, several hundred million dollars). Anyway, his bio listed on the last three pages of the attachment, and I think you should meet him if this is of interest.

His area of expertise is in complete synchronization with what the pockets of opportunity in the current real estate cycle.

James :)
