you took money for psychology class and then spent it on movie class. I asked what classes you had taken , you told me psychology, only the very night before when i saw the grade page , did we discover that once again, what you had told me was inaccurate. (like seeing the cartier braclet on your wrist) . the only class that you did well, not once did you tell me you had not gone to class as your had promised. not once did you tell me that driving school would mean no attendance at the university, , you told me that you wanted to go to school, over and over again, that everyone said you needed a adegree and that you wanted one, I gave in reluctatly to your wishes with your devout crying promise that you would not do to me what you had done to the bulgaris, waste their resources after saying you were serious and that this time would be different, you didnt ask the uni for tutors help, you didnt try to get it right, you didnt submit papaers that everyone else did on time. all the while, going to parties , fashion shows.etc.

I did it. I woke up and looked in the mirror. I realize I've lied to myself and havn't lived up to any of my promises by not finishing what I've started. I will do everything I can to change. I want to be successful margot is not the issue, you need to wake up and look in the mirror. deal with it. you have not finished anything you start. you make promises that you break the next day, you lie to yourself , to friends family and school. . you have great potential that you are throwing away, it is dangerous.
