Dorothy Leivers wrote the book, The Jews of Kopcheve,

A history of the Jews of Kapciamiestis, Lithuania, know in Yiddish as Kopcheve. Dorothy Leivers notes in the Introduction to the book that she was motivated to publish the work so that those Jews from the town who were murdered in the Holocaust could be identified and remembered. The historical portion of the book documents the presence of Jews from its earliest days until the Holocaust. There are numerous family trees, and a number of tables and maps that support the history of the town. An index includes the surnames identified in the book.

She would be the person who has the most details on the Stolovsky family.

Nehama Stolovsky's tombstone is still visible in the Kopcheve cemetery, see <http://www.kapciamiestis.org/allsites/1129/assets/yizkor/E26.jpg>

All the best - it was nice speaking with you, and I hope we'll have continued contact.

I've been researching the Kopcheve families and would like to contact you personally. We might have a family connection.
