I have fleshed this out. Jahm Najafi thinks I should ask Netflix or Amazon for $500K/episode and cover all the costs in house. I am going to see if David Unger or one of two hollywood production companies might want to get involved. I think we could do 6-8 of the episodes as Carnegie Hall subscription series. I think the names proposed would make it sellable. The others would be done in the US, with 2 in the UK.. with a partner I have there who wants to do these kinds of events with me. If I can get someone from the hollywood side to get a meeting with netflix or amazon, and can get them to do the $500K/episode, I would produce. Would you come in with dough for Carnegie Hall for a piece of it.. or in some other way?

p.s. VP of Scribner has been in communication with me about possible books. I have sent him 2 ideas but am formulating the metoo book idea to send him if he wants to make a preemptive bid.
