Are you still in touch with Eva? When I was in Dubai last week I met with a woman Doctor that opened a breast cancer screening/treatment center in Sudan over 10 years ago. She was saying that she has lots of data that would be important that the medical community should have access to. One of the things she was finding there was that women in their 30's that have had 3-4 kids, that would normally be protected from cancer due to the childrearing, are getting breast cancer at higher rates than you would expect. They could also use some help with medicines etc.

If Eva is interested, I can put them in touch.

If you're not in touch with her I will reach out.

Thanks

Looks like my latest offer was accepted for another boat.
