“Breathless with enthusiasm”

New in the archive: Kirill Petrenko and Patricia Kopatchinskaja

Loud cheers and a standing ovation was the audience’s response to the last concert that Kirill Petrenko gave with the Berliner Philharmoniker before taking up office as their chief conductor. First, soloist Patricia Kopatchinskaja showed how much virtuosity and expressive variety there is in Arnold Schoenberg’s Violin Concerto. Then came Tchaikovsky’s passionate Fifth Symphony in a performance full of power and dedication, “with a final passage like a casting out of devils [...]. The hall was completely breathless with enthusiasm and anticipation of what the future holds” (Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung).

The Junge Deutsche Philharmonie is one of the best youth orchestras in Germany. For this year's performance at the Berlin Philharmonie, the ensemble has invited a threefold talent: Jörg Widmann is a composer, clarinetist and conductor, and in this concert presents himself in all three functions – with the clarinet sonata in E flat major by Felix Mendelssohn which he has transcribed for orchestra, Robert Schumann's Second Symphony, and his 2005 Mass for Orchestra.
