Hi Sneaky,

This was sent by my friend who lives in Morocco about two months ago:

"Hello! In Canada, a new immigration law on the admission of immigrants with higher education has entered into force. The probability of obtaining a Canadian green card for accommodation is 95%. The idea is to replenish the educated population by 1 mil. for 3 years. What is needed for this? To be ready to move and have a higher education bachelor if with the master is even better. Our friend Moroccan has just moved to Canada by this method, she really likes it."

Today I went to a workshop by the migration section of the Consulate General of Canada where they gave presentation on potential opportunities to become permanent resident and citizen in Canada. Have you heard of this program Express Entry program? <http://www.cic.gc.ca/english/helpcentre/results-by-topic.asp?top=29>

I think it could be a back up option for me?

I could apply after graduation this December as they say if you have master degree(must be graduated already) then chances are higher.

It will take 5 years but only two out of this you have to be physically and live in Canada, which I could do after my studies at Harvard.

Best,
