Interesting Rich, it says, Wilson is entering his final year contract. Its only a possibility that he will resign with Seattle this off season.

Seahawks coach Pete Carroll revealed on Monday in his season-ending press conference that a new contract for quarterback Russell Wilson is a part of the offseason agenda. 2019 is the final year of the four-year, $87.6 million contract extension Wilson signed at the start of training camp in July 2015. He is scheduled to make $17 million in his contract year.

Wilson arguably had his best season operating the NFL's most run-oriented offense in which the Seahawks exceeded expectations by earning a playoff berth as a wild card after a massive offseason roster overhaul. He set career highs with 35 touchdown passes (tied for third in the NFL) and a 110.9 passer rating (third) although his 427 pass attempts were his fewest since 2013. Wilson threw only seven interceptions, which tied his career low.

Carroll, who recently signed his own extension running through the 2021 season, didn't indicate a timetable for Wilson's deal. Impending free agents, such as defensive end Frank Clark, will be a higher signing priority
