António Guterres – Secretary General of the United Nations remarks after the meeting with His Highness the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed Al Jaber Al Sabah

This is a visit to pay tribute and to express gratitude.

It has not only been the Kuwaiti leadership in humanitarian action but when I was High Commissioner for Refugees, I remember how the media of Kuwait presided to the same conferences to mobilize international community to support the Syrian people suffering so much with the war that has been going on and on. My predecessor Ban Ki-Moon has nominated His Highness as Humanitarian Leader globally. But its not only the humanitarian leadership of Kuwait: it's the wisdom, the dialogue, the promotion of understanding that Kuwait has been showing in relation to all conflicts in the region and Kuwait has no agenda. The agenda of Kuwait is peace and understanding. In relation to the recent crisis that occurred in the Gulf, the position of the United Nations is very simple; we are here to support the Kuwaiti mediation and this was an occasion for me to express our deep appreciation to say how much we want to strengthen the cooperation and the dialogue between Kuwait and the U.N. as we believe Kuwait is an extremely reliable partner in our common commitment to peace and security around the world.

We had the opportunity to discuss all the very difficult situations we are facing, not only the Gulf crisis, Yemen, Syria, the drama of the Palestinian people, Libya, the need to make sure Iraq is able to come together in unity after defeating ISIS. So all these aspects were discussed in a very detailed way and I had the opportunity, once again, to discuss my deep appreciation for all the initiatives Kuwait has had in relation to the solution to this crisis. We also discussed the situation in the Gulf and many of the humanitarian objectives that Kuwait has been leading and that we fully support.

We are doing our best to create conditions for the present stalemate to be overcome. Kuwait was extremely successful in the first conference that was made and we will be working very closely with the Yemen authorities to see when and how a new strong initiative for peace would be possible.

We are not facing any pressure and we conceded that no pressure would lead to anything. But we are not having any pressure, there is technical work being conducted and in the end that will be presented to me and I will take the decision according to what I will feel is the right thing to do.

First of all, there is an initiative that my special representative is trying to push in order to create conditions for both Hodeidah and Sanaa to allow for an effective use for humanitarian purposes for these two very important infrastructures. I hope that it will be possible for an agreement to be achieved between the parties to allow for Hodeidah and Sanaa to be fully operational for the humanitarian needs of the Yemeni people who are suffering in such a terrible way and deserves our solidarity and commitment.
