What I referred to is that we won't have to have all the railings that every area has. Look how ugly these look:

Of course it will have a glass or dark metal railing around the platform. Remember, at this stage we are only talking about concept. Size, shape, look and general idea... railings and many other details will follow and we will detail everything as needed.

Dear Jeffery,

We are still working on this to expand the main platform a bit and remove the last set of stairs which is not needed But please review and let me know if we are on the right track.

We can use some very cool female mannequins in different poses or we can also dress them up doing something fun.

This will be actually way better than the commercial ones because we don't need to use any ugly handrails.
