But why would lots of other Apollo people be getting something similar if this is just about a Tom Turin mistake?

Irs says 880 understatement. TOM says 880 loss not gain . Soo. Sloppy it's difficult to decode

I agree the alternative letter is not great. Note that the IRS's first letter suggests that the BRH numbers are fine, but they can't figure out how we applied them to the return. The IRS's second letter suggests the BRH numbers are wrong and have now been corrected. That leaves the possibility that the IRS is unsure how the new BRH numbers are applied to the return. Even though they appear to have concluded how much we owe.

So if the IRS never returns our call, it is hard to know what to do.

If we want to take the position that the second letter from the IRS obviates the need to send the package we just sent you, attached is an alternate letter we could send in response to the first IRS letter.
