the list is prepared in order of priority, the top line to priority, so it is easy to see how and what is getting done when Going forward, I will have a priority rating added to each task on the punch list. I will also add this as a column in the Smart Sheet software.

That should eliminate situations where you are not informed about work being done or don't agree with priority.

Yes, there is absolutely a punch list with priorities. I received it from Anna at my arrival on the island and it is being followed. The master bedroom steps had a "no excuse" priority marking on her list. I've attached a screen shot

I did make a mistake with flag pool parking and I apologize for that. But all other priorities are being followed as directed.

that doesnt answer why you have not prioritized the punchlist and received feedback, does it? that is how the flagpole parking lot got done but since then you have not asked for prioirtes , are there any?

Jeffrey,

The steps where on the punch list before I got to the island and I have not been involved with the design. But it should be fairly easy to redo the landing so it is less obtrusive. Will discuss with Dupson and forward a solution to a more discrete design

Thanks

i dont want to come out of my bedroom onto a staff landing it should be a path behind a bush, they said they needed steps so ducle wouldnt slip, not sure how john prioritizes punchlist as no one has asked me. . seems silly

Direction given to who, reference only steps
There are 2 landing, Hence both to be removed and steps all the way
