Rusty my sales rep for Gulfstream needs Chevrons approval in order to quote the 144month items.,
Since Josh is unaware of this additional request, should we ask Josh for approval or wait?

(I'd estimate $35k in labor to accomplish these items, my reason to Josh if you think it's appropriate).

We are installing new interior, accomplishing these 144month interior items makes sense now, since we would remove the headliner and side panels to inspect below emergency exit area for corrosion.

(We pay labor, chevron pays any repairs required)

Should I request approval or wait?

Thx

Larry

Larry,

The new company name is not set up in our system. Please review the attachments and fill out and return to me.

I'll need Chevron's authorization to quote the add'l CMP (authorization form) and the new customer account form completed before I can issue the RFQs.

Thanks for your prompt reply.

Subject: Prebuy 5173 N401HB G550 (March 6th, 2017 input)

Rusty,

I'll require two quotes, one for seller and one for buyer responsibility.

Prebuy work scope:

- 1-Premium ARCS $114,000.00 (includes Borescope engine and APU).
- 2-Test flight using Chevron Pilots, with a WestField Avionics tech in jumpseat.
- 3-144 month items due in 2020 see below codes.
- 4-Seller is responsible for payment of due items currently due, up until till May 1st.

I'd like to get a formal "custom" PreBuy quote for 5173 to be accomplished in WestField starting March 6th, 2017. Chevron the seller is responsible for all due items to be completed up until May 1st to clean up their due list.

My goal is to request your expertise in determining what additional items to add,,,I want to complete the Premium PreBuy $114k plus i want to accomplish the extra 144month items due in 2020 as part of my preBuy. Buyer pays labor, seller pays repair items,. 144 Month codes due in 2020, this is what i come up with as far as 144 month due items: does this look correct?
Codes listed in 05-20-00 listed as 144month initial, with 96 month recurring.

We as buyers will pay for labor, and seller will pay for repair items you find.

We as buyer want to accomplish Premium PreBuy that includes some of the 12Month and 36month items that are currently due before May 1st, sellers responsibility.

I don't want to pay for the items twice since seller is responsible for many items currently due now,. That appear on your prebuy sheet.

The following codes are seller responsibility since they are due before May 1st, and are included in your Premium Prebuy work scope, so my labor for these items should be deducted from my work scope payment and seller is responsible for these.
