Please pass along this message. My sister-in-law, Windsor's wife, is a sarcoma oncologist at Memorial Sloan Kettering. Windsor unofficially had her review Jeffrey's MRI. Windsor is the doctor who saw Jeffrey with me. He is a vascular surgeon.

Her recommendation was that it should be removed sooner than later. Once lipomas reach a certain size, the risk of them turning into a liposarcoma increases. I think Jeffrey's lipoma is at that size now.

I didn't say this during our initial consultation because I didn't want him to worry and also I thought he was going to have it removed right away.

There is still only an extremely small chance that this could be a liposarcoma but if it were me, I would have this lipoma removed in a timely fashion.

Thank you,

Jess
