What is the goal?

1. If the goal is for a larger sleeping surface that is in the “berthed position” most of the time, then the RH divan should be removed.
2. With reference to the divan frame, we can spend the money and time on the “Falcon 900 berthing divan” or perhaps work with your existing divan and fabricate two or three composite boxes to equal the 80” length of the divan to increase the width of the bed to your desired measurement. When the bed is stowed and being used as a divan, the three (or maybe even four)boxes / ottomans can be stored in the hangar / aft baggage area/ in the cabin.

Just a thought...

Best Regards,

Eric
