Management on island definitely needed. Ana is great at interacting with staff but she is a little out of her league when it comes to the big picture.

Working on org charts. I will send you a couple of different suggestions later this week.

I'm leaning towards suggesting a house manager for everything inside on both islands and Ana overseeing projects and interacting with staff.

I have a great manager in mind who is also a chef, a hard worker and who will pitch in wherever housekeeping is behind. She currently manages a 36.000 remote estate in upstate NYC and is a superstar.

Do you see Brice and Karen as the Managers or did you scratch that idea?

I guess we need island manager. his reports are landscaping head, household? engineering. (painters?) pool? boat marine. barge.? shoppers. purchasing? no workers on lsj when i am there. . except maids and pool cleaning. landscape when i go to office. and only if requestd. GSJ is so filthy , everyone shold have work to do.

Jeffrey,

I wanted to send you this idea prior to the end of the week because I see PRD is in final stages of refurb.

I think you'd benefit from the locals knowing that you have security staff.

Have PRD painted as security boat. Put "Saint James Islands SECURITY" in large letters on the hull, and maybe a few hull stripes that resembles a police or patrol boat.

Put a police light bar in top. Green color is legal on civilian boats and a strong searchlight.

While I don't think you'd want to pay for full time security officers, a daily or twice daily trip around GSJ with a slow cruise through Christmas Cove will quickly spread the word that the island is being monitored by security. And occasional night round with searchlight would reinforce that as well.

PRD can still be used as prior, but now serves as a deterrent for crashing the island.

Btw I can send you a few design suggestions in Photoshop if you like the idea. I have available time at nights here

John
