Printer:

The good news is that it works fine over USB with the v9.33 driver: https://epson.com/Support/Printers/Professional-Imaging-Printers/Epson-Stylus-Pro-Series/Epson-Stylus-Pro-9600---UltraChrome-Ink/s/SPT_C473001UCM#drivers

The bad news is that it needs to be cleaned before it can go to the island. A couple of the nozzles are clogged and the heads need to be cleaned as well as the paper sensor and probably recalibrated as well.

That's all Epson specific and beyond my skill set. I don't have a Epson tech to refer to, but Epson's support is \(562\) 276-1305 & the machine's serial is D920000207. They should have a local Epson certified tech to refer that can do an onsite repair.

Hi,

I created a new network {named "71st (G)" password sarahsarah} on the third floor. It blankets the front half of the floor, but doesn't reach into the back rooms (wardrobe, guest room or massage room). Where there is coverage, the speed is excellent.

Unlike the Eero system, Google Wifi does NOT appear to do multiple-point relay — WAP #2 and WAP #3 both have to talk back to the main WAP #1, they don't talk to each other. So as long as your main internet source is in the middle of the floor, you'll get great coverage. Unfortunately our only network jack is in the far front of the house on that floor.

So, my preference is for eero. I'm unimpressed by Google wifi.

Looking at 5th floor printer now.
