Re: Edwards adv. Epstein

Dear Ms. Coleman:

The claims against Brad Edwards were filed for the sole purpose of extorting Mr. Edwards, his clients, and other victims of Jeffrey Epstein's criminal molestations into abandoning or compromising their rights to full compensation. When that effort at intimidation failed, the baseless claims continued to be prosecuted in the hope that innocent circumstances might be sufficiently distorted to conceal your client's purely malicious intent. That pursuit has also been a total failure.

The trial court has bent over backwards to provide you the widest possible latitude in the conduct of your doomed fishing expedition. You have received over 20,000 pages of emails, deposed Ponzi scheme investors, extensively examined Mr. Rothstein, consistently hidden behind your client's Fifth Amendment privilege in blatant disregard of the sword-shield doctrine, and turned a blind eye to the substantial protections afforded to attorneys by Florida's litigation privilege. You persist in focusing on the less-than-flimsy "theory" that Mr. Edwards was pursuing irrelevant discovery about the conduct of Epstein and his associates onboard his airplane by completely ignoring the sworn affidavit of Epstein's 4 year-long underage sex slave.

Continue to delay the inevitable at your own personal peril.

Sincerely,

JACK SCAROLA
