Re: Stucco at Larry's house

Brice,

Here is a follow up on the stucco at Larry's. The stucco will have a different finish, texture, even color (although slight) compared to the garage. The stucco is a cement based, dry mix with aggregate (sand) and will not match the garage color. The garage is going to be painted and the color will be more vibrant. The texture on the garage, will be reduced by the application of the paint. The color can be more closely achieved if a synthetic stucco is applied, it also will be more vibrant and durable. Synthetic stucco will run about 2,000.00 more on the house than the cement base described above.
