

GLENMEDE

Dear Jeffrey Epstein:

I am pleased to invite you to participate in a breakfast and roundtable discussion on Tuesday, March 22 from 8:15 – 10:00 a.m., at the University Club of New York, 1 West 54th Street. The focus will be the evolving role and responsibilities of cultural institutions as civic partners, community-builders and economic engines. The goal is to explore emerging practices that influence how non-profit arts organizations respond to the changing needs of their constituencies and the resulting implications for funders.

Dr. Dennie Palmer Wolf, Principal at WolfBrown, a leading advisor to foundations, public agencies and charitable organizations, will facilitate the roundtable.

Laura Rossi, Executive Director, Westchester Community Foundation; Nina Cohen, Director, Endowment and Financial Advisory, Glenmede and Lee Miller, Managing Director, New York Region, Glenmede; and Edie Demas, Executive Director, Jacob Burns Film Center, will speak from their own distinct and expert vantage points.

It is for this reason that your insights and recommendations at the roundtable will be especially worthwhile for non-profit organizations actively looking for new models of innovation.

Kindly respond by March 16th to Shula Brudner at [REDACTED] or 212-785-9188.

Sincerely,

Gordon B. Fowler, Jr.
