

FREE AA guide to Britain's best restaurants

Pick up Tesco, WH or Eas

SEE PAGE 42 FOR DETAILS

Prince tore into gun-toting officers who mistook him for intruder in broad daylight

ANDREW'S RAGE AT BUNGLING PALACE POLICE

Glowing: Miss Winslet at a film festival

AN INFURIATED Prince Andrew tore a strip off gun-wielding officers who mistook him for an intruder at Buckingham Palace.

The Queen's son erupted in fury when two heavily-armed policemen shouted at him to

By Chris Greenwood, Nick Fagge and Rebecca English

'verify his identity' as he walked in broad daylight, sources revealed last night.

The fifth-in-line to the throne stood his ground and was said to have 'made his thoughts plain' during the highly-charged confrontation that followed.

A royal source said: 'He was incredibly, incredibly angry. It was very much a case of guns being pointed at him and "halt who goes there".'

Yesterday police issued a humiliating apology to the Duke of York over the extraordinary error.

It was the second police fiasco within three days at what should be one of the most secure estates in Britain. Just 48 hours earlier

Turn to Page 4