This week we're putting our thinking caps on in preparation for the New Museum's IDEAS CITY and presenting a few projects that get us thinking outside the proverbial box.

Color and Shape

Distilling core philosophical concepts into a line or two of text and a graphic image can't be easy, but London designer Genis Carreras has done just that. His box of cards is filled with simple, visual explanations of things like existentialism, idealism, and 93 other "-isms" ready for you to namedrop at parties.

Philographics: Big ideas in simple shapes

by Genis Carreras

 Category Graphic Design

 Location London, United Kingdom

Kindergarde: Experimental Writing for Children

by Marthe Reed, Black Radish Books

 Category Children's Book

 Location Lafayette, LA

Experiment and imagine

Kindergarde is an award-winning anthology of experimental writing made especially for children. Rooted in the idea that kids are a lot smarter and weirder than we give them credit for, the first print run of this book was so successful that the writers are coming back to reprint it and share it with a wider audience.

LeeFest: A Music and Arts Festival Run By You! #growLeeFest

by LeeFest

 Category Music

Not your Dad's music fest

Seven years ago, Lee's parents went away for the weekend with one stipulation: no house parties! Lee's creative solution? Throw a music festival in his backyard. Since then, LeeFest has grown exponentially and is now moving out of the backyard and into the countryside. Join Lee in presenting an arts and music festival for the masses!
