Just wanted to send you this link to a short piece i did on NPR "All Things Considered" yesterday and a copy of our most recent study on physicians' brains while treating patients. It's gotten much media attention. We're hoping to expand the model to measure patients and physicians simultaneously and elucidate how non-conscious communication happens in the patient-physician relationship and cascades into placebo responses.

We also have a series of other projects that are ready to get off the ground. We're at an exciting point of growth. If you had time, I would very much like to talk.

Best wishes,

Ted
