Gettysburg Address Letterpress

By Craig Welsh

Restore GOTO

Restore GOTO

By Arrow Films

The story of Walerian Borowczyk's film Goto, Island of Love is as wild as the film itself. Upon release, it was banned in communist Poland and fascist Spain. In the 1970s, the original negative of the film was destroyed in a fire. Now, the film, which Terry Gilliam calls "brilliant," is being given a chance at a second life, through a restoration effort that hopes to bring it to contemporary audiences.

The Forbidden Reel: A Journey Through Cinemas of Kabul

By Jonathan Saruk

Photographer Jonathan Saruk has seen firsthand how movies offer a way for everyday folks to escape the harsh realities of life in Kabul. In his new book, he captures the importance of cinema in these peoples' lives.
