Finally a data point for lack of correlation

Dear Partners/Friends,

Eagle's View Capital Partners, L.P. posted an estimated gain of +0.20% for June with YTD performance estimated at +3.98% net of all fees and expenses.

Eagle's View Diversified Opportunities Fund, L.P. is estimated at flat for June with YTD performance estimated at +4.15% net of all fees and expenses.

Eagle's View Offshore Fund, Ltd. Class E is estimated at -0.15% for June with YTD performance estimated at +3.56% net of all fees and expenses.

All Eagle's View Funds are outperforming the HFRI Fund of Funds composite index for the YTD through June 30.

Ironically, the Eagle's View Funds has their most moderate performance of 2013 during a month that was the most turbulent and negative for mainstream asset classes and alternative investments thus far this year. In light of the drop in equities, fixed income, and commodities, nearly all categories of hedge fund strategies posted negative performance for the month.

We feel that June was a valuable month for us to showcase just how differentiated Eagle's View is from the performance of mainstream assets as well as other alternative investments. We strive to deliver an uncorrelated source of alpha and June assisted us in highlighting this in an environment whereby this has been extremely difficult to prove.

We doubt there are many other Fund of Funds holding a broad array of underlying hedge funds that managed to be modestly positive or flatish during the month of June.

Our domestic Funds were positively impacted by one of our option trading strategies which recovered some losses from the prior month. Other winners for the month included Japanese Convertible Bond Arbitrage, European and Domestic Power Trading, as well as Soft Commodities trading. Losers were generally well contained and included Volatility Arbitrage, Quantitative Global Macro, and Merger Arbitrage.

While we are pleased with our performance on a relative basis, we expect absolute returns to be more robust in months ahead.

Eagle's View is invested in strategies that attempt to exploit market inefficiencies and maintain a positive expectancy throughout all types of market environments. We strongly believe in the value of providing investors with a return stream that can provide a unique source of alpha versus their other more traditional investments.

We are accepting new clients within our Fund of Funds product as well as with our Advisory business. Please contact me with further interest in our products/services.
