Dear Good News Friends:

11.11.11 we are very happy to announce that our first print story for our new initiative GOOD NEWS REPORTERS$ has come in about Gina Elise, Pin-ups for Vets brings smiles to wounded warriors written by Elaine Masters. Here is a preview of the story.

Gina Elise is a retro pinup queen with a heart of gold. Her 1940's style calendars, Pin-ups for Vets, bring smiles to the faces of wounded warriors around the world. Bedside hospital visits and a fifty state tour are keeping Elise busy fund raising for strapped Veteran and military hospitals.

Gina Elise:

If you want to read more of this wonderful story please go to <http://goodnewsplanet.com/jobs/pin-ups-for-vets-brings-smiles-to-wounded-warriors/> and make a donation to view the entire article. The money will be shared by the writer and Gina Elise and www.PinupsforVets.com.

This is very exciting and let's all help those who can use it and create Good News Stories that inspire people to do more Good. Go to GoodNewsPlanet.com/jobs to become a reporter or to make donations.

Our Silent Press Conference today at 11.11.11 in Strawberry Field, NYC on top of the IMAGINE artwork went well. This location symbolizes to Good News the meaning of our motto; All we are is what we are for each other. We felt was a perfect place to launch our Good News Reporter initiative on www.goodnewsplanet.com/jobs and pay homage to Veterans.

As always we thank you for supporting us and those we feature.
