Is Peace Possible if Israel Does Not Dismantle all Settlements?

When serious negotiations begin over the final status of the West Bank, battle lines will be drawn over which settlements should be incorporated into Israel, and which must be evacuated. In August 2005, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon acknowledged that "not all the settlements that are today in Judea and Samaria will remain Israeli" while leaked Palestinian negotiating documents indicate the Palestinians are prepared to accept that some settlements will be incorporated into Israel.

Israel Deniers

According to Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, the second most serious threat to Israel, after the Iranian nuclear program, is the global campaign to delegitimize Israel. For the last several years, individuals and organizations have joined the Israeli government in responding to this danger. In doing so, however, they have largely been on the defensive, constantly forced to define delegitimization and mocked when its proponents are accused of anti-Semitism. It is time to adopt a more accurate and
