An Origins Project Dialogue with Mariette DiChristina

As the eighth Editor-in-Chief of Scientific American, and the first woman to hold the position in 170 years, Mariette DiChristina is a true science enthusiast and journalist with more than 20 years of experience. She is also the Origins Project's esteemed guest at the upcoming Trailblazing for Science: An Evening with Mariette DiChristina. We invite you to meet and learn more about Mariette in our latest blog post.

Be sure to get your tickets and join us on Friday, April 22 at Herberger Theater Center for an evening with Mariette DiChristina and Lawrence Krauss as they discuss the role of science in our life and how to better fuse the relationship between science and journalism in the digital age.

Upcoming Cruise Announcement

From the Galapagos Islands to Antarctica, the Origins Project has offered curious adventurers and science enthusiasts the opportunity to explore some of the world's greatest treasures. Aboard these cruises, Lawrence Krauss has led explorers on trips throughout space and time with a number of lectures and talks. Sound intriguing? Follow us on Facebook and Twitter and be on the lookout for information regarding an upcoming Origins Project cruise. You won't want to miss it!
