To Whom It May Concern:

For more than twelve years I have known Mr. Ron Rodgers in both a professional and social capacity. Over this time, I have had the pleasure and opportunity to get to know him on many levels as trusted and knowledgeable estate manager and friend.

As an international lighting designer of luxury projects, I have met and worked with scores of owner's representatives and project managers. Having worked with Ron, he has shown himself to be diligent, thorough, concise and attentive to his clients' needs. His ability to work with various design professionals and convey concepts with tact and diplomacy enabled a fluid and comfortable process... a trait not often seen in our industry. I can say having Ron on a project was always an asset. He consistently educates himself on trends and furthers his knowledge through insightful questioning of other professionals or additional certified course work. Ron is astute and manages schedules and budgets extremely well. He is top-notch when it comes to caring for the interests of high net worth clients and managing their luxury properties.

Socially, Ron has a wonderful manner and good sense of humor. He approaches life with the right balance of joy and care. He is thoughtful, considerate and someone I can rely upon. Ron has traveled and lived throughout the world and brings this sophistication and experience to his every day life. His own homes are a reflection of his dedication to style, form and function with always the best of hospitality.

Ron possesses many qualities and qualifications which provide any project or client with one of the most well-rounded team members. I look forward to working with him again if the opportunity arises. Or just share a fantastic meal and wonderful company.

Sincerely yours,

Clark Johnson
