Myths & Facts: Online Exclusive

Does Hamas Endanger Civilians?

Hamas has been shown to use mosques, hospitals, ambulances and schools to conceal and transport weapons and as bases and hiding places for its fighters on multiple occasions. Many rockets are also fired from near these normally sacrosanct places to attract Israeli fire in the hope that civilians will be killed. Hamas then offers journalists, whose freedom is otherwise constrained to what the terrorists want them to see, "telegenic victims," children whenever possible.

Myths & Facts: Online Exclusive

Are Journalists Deceived by Palestinian propaganda?

The normally skeptical press is remarkably docile and unquestioning when it comes to information coming from Hamas. As we've seen in past conflicts, journalists often check their professional ethics at the door to gain access to areas controlled by terrorists. Unlike journalists in Israel who are free to report whatever they want, the price of admission to Gaza is to go where Hamas wants them to go, see what the terrorists want them to see and report what they are told.
