Every perceptual experience is a mobject

This includes body/ brain / universe

Mobjects are modified forms of consciousness experienced in consciousness and made out of consciousness

They appear and disappear in space/time

Consciousness itself is non local and not in space time mactions are actions on mental objects. like rotating a ball in your mind. . it seems to involve the same brain places as actions in the material world.

Mactions evoke the experience of the universe

Different mactions in different species evoke different universe

Evolution of species is evolution of mobjects and mactions in consciousness

Darwin needs an update

See you tonight
Here is how your vocabulary fits the worldview I'm in favor of Brain/Body/ Universe are interdependently co arising symbolic representations of species specific consciousness - mobjects and mactions in species of consciousness
If you think it's a good idea I can do a draft for an article to be published with input from your prestigious luminaries as coauthors

The principle of plenitude asserts that the universe contains all possible forms of existence. The historian of ideas Arthur Lovejoy was the first to discuss this philosophically important principle explicitly. Lovejoy distinguishes two versions of the principle: a static version, in which the universe displays a constant fullness and diversity, and a temporalized version, in which fullness and diversity gradually increase over time. a 400 year old idea
