Hi, just forwarded you an email from bank of China's recruitment department with a comprehensive Questionnaire. There is no answer for many of the questions. They appear to think he is applying for an internship or some sort of employment. In UK all pupils his age has to do unpaid "work experience" where they are at a work place for a week. It is obligatory and regulated by British authorities. Thousands of students are doing it this summer. See mail I sent from the Stowe school. Think it will be to complicated to do it with Bank of China. Probably it has to be a British organization who knows what it is.

Among three assignments - Bill asked me to help write up recommendations and a plan for his Alzheimer vision. He told me he wanted to decide what to do in a few months and he wanted me to think about it differently and like i did for special initiatives in the old days.

Then larry confirmed and said great.

Then the team of bose and Jonah (the really annoying technical assistant of bills and the communications guy) were supposed to help me and update me in what was done. They did nothing and lied to me about what they had and what was happening

For example:

1. They wrote a whole strategy for bill and sent it to him two weeks after i started. I wasn't copied - bill sent it to me and asked if I knew about it.
2. They didn't invite me to any internal gathering in the topics and then Larry would ask why I wasn't stay the meetings.

3. They call people that bill asked me to speak to and tell them they don't need to talk to me.

4. Then 2 weeks ago they hired McKinsey to do exactly my job, same instruction as I was given.

Last week larry invited me to dinner w Jonah and asked me to talk about what I had been working in for Alzheimer ideas since I hadn't been at any meetings etc.

I walked through the seven ideas I sent you a few days previously and he loved them. He was high fiving me and telling Jonah this is how we need to think about it etc. and of course Jonah said well this isn't how we are thinking about it and melanie needs to meet with McKinsey and get updated.

So I did. And they have no clue what they are doing. No experience in Alzheimer and will need to dona full landscape etc and then won't come up w anything creative.

I've worked nearly 15 years for bill and know how he thinks about these things since I used to run his special projects. I understand also the neuro space very directly.

Bose told me that

1. I was not going to be involved in anything for bgc3 going forward and that his role was providing advice to bill not mine.

2. Any of my work needed to go through him. Etc.

That seems to be the attitude of everyone working there.

My goal is to end my assignment there with integrity and knowing I did exactly what was asked and did it super well.

I would like to submit my list of options to bill and larry and say - I've discussed these with Larry.

I do not want to pass them on to McKinsey. The ideas are too good and the result of a lot of my own work and unique experiences after 25 years doing neuro.

But bose and Jonah keep sending me mail and voicemail to share w McKinsey.

I'm afraid we will have two strategies - one formulaic and industry focused by McKinsey and one that mirrors bill's way of thinking, his hopes for impact and sensitivity for risk.

That was the purpose of my drafted note.

I dont want him to forward to larry so I need to think of something to put in there that will stop him from forwarding
