The owner agrees that you talk of it as you offered this morning. But is happy to keep as discreet as possible and not to disclose the provenance at this stage. The owner knows that the best informed will probably understand immediately but wants as much discretion as possible. Thanks. If I am not clear, forgive me and happy to discuss. But main message is that we have a go. Best. Olivier This is the text I sent to Humphrey
It answers his question which was: am I allowed to talk about the item to people saying
"it's a 19...blue...etc" ?
The problem here is the ambiguity of the role of this Anerican woman I did not give mandate to Humphrey to sell. For me he is part of the American woman's team and I answered candidly his question re authorisation to talk about the item Thanks Terje for your calls

Humphrey, I believe there is a misunderstanding somewhere that we need to lift. When you asked me if you were allowed to talk about the item (and describe its main features), I took it for granted that it was within the frame of discussions that your American friend and you had already engaged. After getting approval from the owner, I said it was a go to talk about it with the people you are in touch with along with the American lady. So I think it's important at this point to clarify that the item is not on the market and shall not be presented outside of this frame. There is some ambiguity there that I would rather address. I'm sorry for any problem that this ambiguity might have created. All the best. Olivier

I then replied with "perfect!"
