Read about calabi-yau shapes and theoretical possibilities / helps understand the nature and number of possibilities in string theory (superstring vibrations)

I think that we are thinking about life wrong and that longevity as measured by time isn't quite right

Seems like within mitochondria there's a "clock" that has a similar predetermined set of actions or events that could possibly best case span 120 years. But it's more about the pace of use of these actions and the care at which each phase is managed. More like a savings account than a clock.

there seems to be limit of 50 times division. ? but not with different oxygen levels? your hyper baric is from the 30 s. . and many us clinics have hyped it. .

I think the answer is in mitochondria

Oxygen is just fuel. Pressure is just another condition.

Everyone now mostly focused on extension and that's no so interesting

I want to slow down division time and reduce variation and damage to mitochondria

Just sent you some outside the box ideas for your consideration

Raj at rockefeller (new prez) asked me to help him over next 18-24 months build a Frontiers in life sciences program that I could come run when I'm done w my fellowship

He just took over and has to sort legacy issues and budgets and his org chart but he wants to build something true to rockefeller roots in breakthrough science and wants me to run or help run - could be fun

I think that could be a space for BG to engage he joined rockefeller and other donors to build this "green revolution for Africa" and my guess is that if we had a different sort of "quantum revolution" in life sciences he'd want to join but dunno

Your last CT was September 6, 2016 non-obstructive clock involving the left anterior descending (LAD)

Should have a follow up stress test this October

I have terrific weekend coming up
