OPINION

ORDER

The captioned case is before the court for consideration of defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction [4-1].

I. Background

This is a breach of contract claim arising out of an employment agreement between plaintiff and defendant. Defendant, a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in Virginia, manufactures parts for chairs and architectural columns through its two subsidiaries, Coffman Stairs and Crown Columns. Defendant hired plaintiff as a regional sales manager for Coffman Stairs in 2005 to increase sales in the southeast. (Ex. A to Pl.'s Resp. 1). At all times during his employment, plaintiff resided in Georgia.

On November 16, 2006, defendant terminated plaintiff's employment due to company downsizing. Plaintiff asserts that he is owed a substantial severance package under the employment agreement. After [*2] defendant contested the validity of the agreement, plaintiff brought this breach of contract claim, which defendant moved to dismiss on September 7, 2007 for lack of personal jurisdiction [4-1].

The plaintiff has the initial burden of establishing a prima facie case of personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant. Meier v. Sun Intern. Hotels, Ltd., 288 F.3d 1264, 1268-69 (11th Cir. 2002). "A prima facie case is established if the plaintiff presents enough evidence to withstand a motion for directed verdict." Id. at 1269 (quoting Madara v. Hall, 916 F.2d 1510, 1514 (11th Cir. 1990)). If the defendant challenges the facts alleged in the complaint and submits affidavits to the contrary, the burden traditionally shifts back to the plaintiff to produce evidence supporting jurisdiction. Meier, 288 F.3d at 1269; Posner v. Essex Ins. Co., Ltd., 178 F.3d 1209, 1215 (11th Cir. 1999). If the plaintiff's complaint and supporting evidence conflict with the defendant's affidavits, the court must construe all reasonable inferences in favor of the plaintiff. Meier, 288 F.3d at 1269; Madara, 916 F.2d at 1514.

A federal court must have both statutory and constitutional authority to assert jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant. See McGee v. International Life Ins. Co., 355 U.S. 220, 223, 78 S. Ct. 199, 2 L. Ed. 2d 223 (1957). In analyzing whether personal jurisdiction exists, the court must first determine whether a defendant is subject to jurisdiction under Georgia's long-arm statute. If so, the court must then determine if an assertion [*3] of jurisdiction would be constitutional. See Madara, 916 F.2d at 1514.

The Georgia Long-Arm Statute provides, in relevant part:

A court of this state may exercise personal jurisdiction over any nonresident or his executor or administrator as to a cause of action arising from any of the acts, omissions, ownership, use, or possession enumerated in this Code section, in the same manner as if he were a resident of the state, if in person or through an agent, he:

(1) Transacts any business within this state;

O.C.G.A. § 9-10-91 (2007). The long-arm statute confers personal jurisdiction to the full extent permitted by the Due Process Clause. Innovative Clinical & Consulting Servs., LLC v. First Nat'l Bank, 279 Ga. 672, 620 S.E.2d 352, 355 (Ga. 2005) (construing the first and second sections of the statute as reaching to the maximum extent permitted by procedural due process). The court, therefore, may bypass statutory analysis and proceed directly to an evaluation of whether exercising personal jurisdiction over defendant is consistent with the Due Process Clause. See Datacom Warranty Corp. v. The Phone Connection of Kansas, Inc., No.06-1835, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 76622, at *5 (N.D. Ga. Oct. 20, 2006) ("[I]t is permissible for courts to pass over an analysis of the long arm statute and exercise personal jurisdiction if the constitutional requirements are satisfied."). See also Peridyne Technology Solutions, LLC v. Matheson Fast Freight, Inc., 117 F. Supp. 2d 1366, 1369 (N.D. Ga. 2000).

"The Due Process Clause protects an individual's liberty interest in not being subject to the binding judgments of a forum with which he has established [*4] no meaningful 'contacts, ties, or relations.'" Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 471-72, 105 S. Ct. 2174, 85 L. Ed. 2d 528 (1985) (quoting International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310, 319, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 (1945)). Due process contemplates two types of personal jurisdiction: general jurisdiction and specific jurisdiction. Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia, S.A. v. Hall, 466 U.S. 408, 414, 104 S. Ct. 1868, 80 L. Ed. 2d 404 (1984). For general jurisdiction, a non-resident defendant's contacts with the forum must be substantial, showing continuous and systematic contacts between the defendant and the forum state. Meier, 288 F.3d at 1274 (11th Cir. 2002). Specific jurisdiction exists when defendant's contacts with the forum: (1) are related to the cause of action; (2) involve some act by which the defendant purposefully availed itself of the benefits of the forum; and (3) are such that the defendant should reasonably anticipate being sued in the forum state. Francosteel Corp. v. M/V Charm, 19 F.3d 624, 627 (11th Cir. 2007). "The availability of specific jurisdiction depends on the relationship among the defendant, the forum, and the litigation." Borg-Warner Acceptance Corp. v. Lovett & Tharpe, Inc., 786 F.2d 1055, 1057 (11th Cir. 1986).

Defendant contends it lacks sufficient minimum contacts to warrant personal jurisdiction in the state of Georgia. Defendant is not registered to do business in Georgia and does not maintain an office, telephone listing, mailing address, or business location in Georgia. (Def.'s Mot. Dismiss 2). Defendant sells its products only to authorized dealers and distributors, who then sell the products to consumers. [*5] (Id. at 3). Though it concedes some of those dealers and distributors are located in Georgia, defendant maintains that its sale to those agents merely places their products into the stream of commerce. (Id. at 14). Moreover, defendant argues that, even if valid, the employment contract with plaintiff is insufficient to establish specific jurisdiction.

The court finds that defendant established minimum contacts with Georgia sufficient to support specific personal jurisdiction. This claim arises out of a breach of an employment contract allegedly entered into between the parties. The contract provides that plaintiff serve as defendant's regional sales manager, and plaintiff states that the purpose of his employment was to increase defendant's sales in Georgia and other southeastern states.¹ (Ex. A to Pl.'s Resp. 1). The contract, therefore, was to be performed, at least in part, within Georgia. At all times during his employment, plaintiff resided in Georgia. (Id.) As regional sales manager, plaintiff contacted defendant's customers, and defendant paid plaintiff's salary for the performance of his duties. (Ex. B to Def.'s Mot. Dismiss 3). Nonetheless, defendant now argues that it did not "voluntarily accept [*6] the . . . employment contract." (Def.'s Mot. Dismiss 19). Given the almost two-year professional relationship between the parties, the court finds defendant's attempts to distance itself from the contract unpersuasive.

Defendant maintains it could not have anticipated plaintiff's Georgia residence because the employment agreement required him to relocate to Virginia. Under a section entitled "Compensation and Benefits," the employment agreement provides that defendant "shall reimburse [plaintiff] for the reasonable costs and expense . . . incurred . . . in relocating to the location of [defendant's] headquarters." (Ex. A to Pl.'s Compl. 2). No other language in the contract, however, mandates that plaintiff move to Marion, Virginia, and plaintiff states defendant never asked him to relocate. (Ex. A to Pl.'s Resp. 2). The court finds that this ambiguous contractual provision does not mitigate defendant's contacts with Georgia.

SDNY_GM_00063476

Defendant also argues that the choice of law provision contained in the employment agreement indicates that defendant did not purposely avail itself of Georgia jurisdiction. "While by no means dispositive, a choice of law provision in a contract between the litigants [*7] is a factor in deciding . . . whether the parties intended to invoke the benefits and protections of a particular state." Allegiant Physicians Servs. v. Sturdy Mem'l Hosp., 926 F. Supp. 1106, 1116 (N.D. Ga. 1996). In its arguments, defendant repeatedly emphasizes its ties to Virginia and even construes the employment agreement as requiring that plaintiff relocate to its headquarters in Marion, Virginia. The choice of law provision contained in the contract, however, provides that North Carolina law governs the terms of the contract. The court finds that the choice of law provision weighs against plaintiff but, especially considering this agreement, does not preclude a finding of specific jurisdiction.

Although a contract with a non-resident alone is not always sufficient to support personal jurisdiction, Burger King, 471 U.S. at 478-79, the employment agreement, itself, is evidence that defendant participates in the Georgia marketplace. Defendant hired plaintiff to increase sales with, among others, the Georgia dealers and distributors with whom it conducts business. Defendant manufactures, markets, and sells its products to dealers and distributors. The authorized dealers and distributors then sell defendant's products to builders and other consumers without defendant's further knowledge or participation. [*8] (Ex. A to Def.'s Mot. Dismiss 3).² Defendant, therefore, characterizes these transactions as merely placing goods into the stream of commerce and insufficient to establish minimum contacts. The court disagrees.

Unlike where a non-resident defendant ships a product to an independent distributor who then controls its ultimate destination, defendant sells products to authorized Georgia distributors and dealers who maintain store locations throughout the state. See Gold Kist, Inc. v. Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream Co., 623 F.2d 375, 382 n. 5 (5th Cir. 1980) (stating that business is transacted when defendant's obligations or business operations have a realistic impact on Georgia commerce). Though defendant employs independent sales representatives, it exclusively negotiates the contracts and orders solicited by those agents and then ships the products directly to the dealer or distributor in Georgia. (Ex. A to Def.'s Mot. Dismiss 2). Cf. Bond v. Octagon Process, Inc., 745 F. Supp. 710, 712 (M.D. Ga. 1990) (finding no personal jurisdiction where defendant shipped products to various government depots, after which the government sent them where needed). Defendant derives two percent of its total gross sales from these Georgia transactions. Defendant also sends trainers and sales representatives to Georgia to train its dealers and distributors about [*9] its products and their installation. (Ex. A to Pl.'s Resp. 2) Defendant's active solicitation, authorization, and facilitation of relationships with Georgia merchants constitute action purposefully directed toward Georgia, and defendant should have reasonably anticipated being haled into court here as a result of those contacts.

Additionally, defendant's website, while not sufficiently interactive to establish general personal jurisdiction, does suggest that defendant intended to transact business in specific state markets. As first enunciated in Zippo Mfg. Co. v. Zippo Dot Com,

[t]he likelihood that personal jurisdiction can be constitutionally exercised is directly proportionate to the nature and quality of the commercial activity that an entity conducts over the Internet. This sliding scale is consistent with well developed personal jurisdiction principles. At one end of the spectrum are situations where a defendant clearly does business over the Internet. If the defendant enters into contracts with residents of a foreign jurisdiction that involve the knowing and repeated transmission of computer files over the Internet, personal jurisdiction is proper. At the opposite end are situations [*10] where a defendant has simply posted information on an Internet Web site which is accessible to users of foreign jurisdictions. A passive Web site that does little more than make information available to those who are interested in it is not grounds for the exercise of personal jurisdiction. The middle ground is occupied by interactive Web sites where a user can exchange information with the host computer. In these cases the exercise of jurisdiction is determined by examining the level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs on the Web site.

952 F. Supp. 1119, 1124 (W.D. Penn. 1997). Defendant's website falls within the "middle ground" because although consumers cannot order its products over the website, they are able to browse defendant's product selection, "find out more" about the company through a request form, and locate nearby authorized dealers and distributors. See Barton Southern Co. v. Manhole Barrier Systems, 318 F. Supp. 2d 1174, 1177 (N.D. Ga. 2004). Through its "Dealer Locator Program," defendant promises dealers that it will "bring potential local Coffman customers to [their] door" by allowing consumers to enter their zip codes on the website and access a list of authorized dealers in the area. See Coffman Stairs - Dealer Programs, <http://www.coffmanstairs.com/dealer/dealer2.htm>. [*11] Rather than merely placing its products into the stream of commerce, defendant directs customers, including those residing in Georgia, to its authorized local dealers and distributors.

Finally, the exercise of jurisdiction over defendant comports with traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. In assessing the reasonableness of a forum's assertion of jurisdiction over a non-resident defendant, the court considers:

(1) the burden on defendant in litigating the lawsuit; (2) the forum state's interest in adjudicating the dispute; (3) the plaintiff's interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief; (4) the interstate judicial system's interest in obtaining the most efficient resolution of controversies; and (5) the shared interest of the states in furthering fundamental social policies.

World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson, 444 U.S. 286, 292, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 (1980). Georgia is the most convenient forum for plaintiff, who resided in Georgia during his employment with defendant and remains a resident of this state. Georgia also has an interest in protecting against and adjudicating contract disputes that involve, at least partially, transactions with Georgia companies and that occur within the state. "[O]ften the interests of the plaintiff and the [*12] forum in the exercise of jurisdiction will justify even the serious burdens placed on the alien defendant." Asahi Metal Industry Co. v. Superior Court of California, 480 U.S. 102, 114, 107 S. Ct. 1026, 94 L. Ed. 2d 92 (1987). Plaintiff has agreed to conduct depositions in Virginia or North Carolina to diminish the inconvenience to defendant. The court, therefore, finds that defendant will not be seriously burdened by defending this lawsuit in Georgia.

Accordingly, defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction [4-1] is hereby DENIED.
